8-Witches fly on broomsticks, have black cats, make witch's brew in black cauldrons. In the 1600's, people were burned at the stake for being witches. That was a shameful time in our history. People were very superstitious. Are people superstitious in your country?

9-Halloween has been celebrated for thousands of years in the British Isles. Before Christianity people believed that during the three days from October 31st to November 2nd, the boundary between the material world and the spiritual world was porous (there were holes in it). It was easy for spirits to move back and forth during this time. Sometimes people dressed as witches or spirits to try to keep evil spirits from harming them. Bonfires would be built on the hilltops. People would extinguish their hearth fires and relight them from the common bonfire. Perhaps jack o lanterns were used at this time to bring the fire back to the home. Poor people and children would disguise themselves in costumes and go from house to house begging.

10-After Christianity, the church changed this holiday. It became a time to honor the hallowed (sacred) souls of people who had died. It became known as All Souls Day or All Saints Day.

11-Do you celebrate Halloween or a holiday like it in your country? How is it celebrated? Do you have a holiday to honor those who have died? What customs are part of this celebration?

12-Would you allow your children to trick or treat? Do you think it is dangerous?
